How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

During the Redwood Managed Volatility Fund’s (the “Fund”) fiscal year, bond markets navigated a shifting interest-rate landscape as the Federal Reserve began easing policy. Treasury yields moved lower over the period, but resilient economic data limited the pace of declines. Corporate credit, however, performed strongly. Investment-grade spreads tightened over the year, while high-yield spreads hovered near their tightest levels since before 2021, reflecting steady demand and a supportive risk environment.

The Fund returned 4.08%. Following our quantitative, risk-managed process, the Fund reacted defensively during the sharp April selloff — the widely referenced tariff “Liberation Day” shock — which sent risk assets into a brief but intense decline. The Fund moved out of risk assets during this episode, successfully reducing downside exposure. However, markets rebounded swiftly afterward, and the Fund’s risk-off positioning caused it to miss a portion of that rapid recovery. As a result, returns over the full fiscal year were more modest compared to periods when trends remain uninterrupted. The Fund’s contribution for the year came primarily from allocations to high-yield corporate bond mutual funds and a positive addition from an affiliated, short-duration private debt strategy, the Redwood Real Estate Income Fund (ticker: CREMX). Despite the more conservative stance during the April dislocation, these exposures supported the Fund’s total return relative to the opportunity set. The benchmark, the BofA Merrill Lynch 3–5 Year Treasury Index**, returned 5.99% over the same period. Capital markets are infinitely complex. Every day, new information shifts the risk-return landscape. Rather than forecast or speculate, we rely on a disciplined, quantitative approach designed to minimize subjectivity and focus on managing risk through ever-changing conditions.

** The Bank of America Merrill Lynch 3–5 Year Treasury Index is an unmanaged index of U.S. Treasury securities with maturities of three to five years. Investors cannot invest directly in an index or benchmark. Index returns do not reflect fees, brokerage commissions, or other expenses.

Material Fund Changes

This is a summary of certain changes to the Fund since November 1, 2024.

On December 10, 2024, the Board approved an Agreement and Plan of Reorganization with respect to each of the Funds, pursuant to which each of the Funds was intended to reorganize into a corresponding newly created series of Investment Managers Series Trust II (the "Reorganizations"). Based on the recommendation of the Adviser, the Board has determined that proceeding with the Reorganizations is no longer in the best interests of the Funds and their respective shareholders. The proposals from the adjourned special meeting of shareholders (the "Special Meeting") initially held on August 15, 2025, have been withdrawn, and the Special Meeting has been cancelled. As a result, the Reorganizations will not be consummated, and the Funds will continue to operate as separate series of the Trust. The termination of the Reorganizations does not impact financial position of any of the Funds, and no adjustments have been made to the Funds' financial statements as a result of this event.
